

A Release of All Claims form is essential in situations where a patient is upset over some aspect of treatment and demands a refund. A Release is also necessary if you refund money to an insurance company to resolve a patient dispute or if you reimburse another dentist or specialist for remedial dentistry to correct something done in your office. Release forms are sometimes necessary in situations where bills are written off.

A Release of All Claims is not necessary if you are simply giving a refund to a patient because of an insurance overpayment or other situation where a credit is generated. They are only applicable in disputes over treatment or fees where money must be returned.

PIE has various Release forms available to its insured for specific situations. We do not post Release forms on the web site because we want to coach the dentist involved as to how the forms must be used. Please call Dr. Engar to discuss your specific problem if the need arises.
